

He has Told You O Man What is Good

Another argument the atheist cannot answer pertains to the existence of morality (the moral argument).

It is evident that there is real, objective moral value, and therefore there must be a real, objective moral standard. The source of this moral standard is Almighty God. Consider Micah 6:8:

He has told you, O man, what is good; and what does the LORD require of you but to do justice, to love kindness, and to walk humbly with your God?

Atheists claim that morality is simply a product of an evolved society that has determined by experience what is best for members of that society.

If that is true, then morality is not objective, but rather it is a matter of opinion or consensus. This is a dangerous proposition, for it can lead to situations such as that which happened in Nazi Germany, when the majority consented to the murders of six million Jews.

Sometimes atheists will say that there is no real, objective moral value, but they will then contradict themselves by speaking of right, wrong, crime, law, evil, etc. They will condemn the Nazis for their atrocities but then deny the moral standard of God's word that defines what atrocities are.

Thus, we see that atheists have no good answer for morality but give evidence for God in themselves, "in that they show the work of the Law written in their hearts, their conscience bearing witness and their thoughts alternately accusing or else defending them" (Rom. 2:15).

What is your answer for morality?

Romans 1:32 – And although they know the ordinance of God, that those who practice such things are worthy of death, they not only do the same, but also give hearty approval to those who practice them.
